All India Quota (AIQ)

State Quota

Management Quota

NRI Quota etc.

The biggest concern during medical admission among parents or students is about the details of the admission quota system and which quota one falls under.

In this section, we will explain All India Quota, State Quota, Management Quota, NRI Quota, Deemed Universities & Central Institutes in the simplest possible language.

All India Quota (AIQ – 15%)

What it is:

15% medical seats reserved for any candidates from any state of India in government medical colleges across the country.

Who can apply:

Any NEET-qualified student from any state in India

Counselling authority:

MCC (Medical Counselling Committee)

Important points:

- Cut-offs are usually high due to national-level competition
- Category reservation (SC/ST/OBC/EWS) applies

State Quota (85%)

State quota refers to the 85% government medical college seats reserved for domicile or residence of a particular state in the country.

Who can apply:

Students who fulfil state domicile criteria

Counselling authority:

State Medical Counselling Body (varies state to state)

Important points:

- Lower cut-off compared to AIQ
- State-specific reservation rules apply

Management Quota (Private Medical Colleges)

What it is:

Seats available in private medical colleges where admission is mainly based on:

- NEET qualification
- Budget

Who can apply:

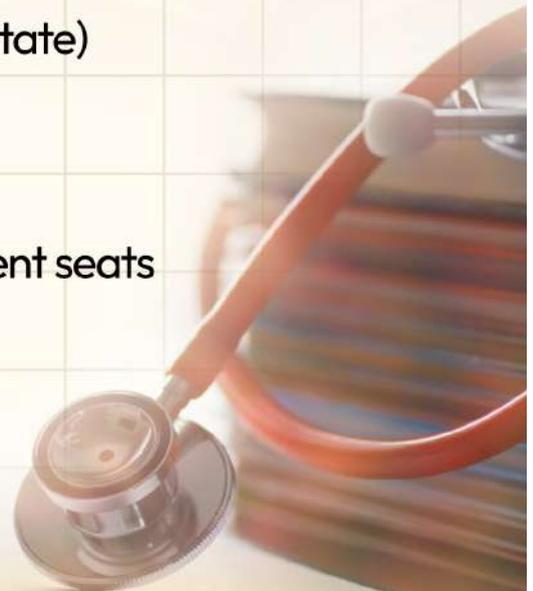

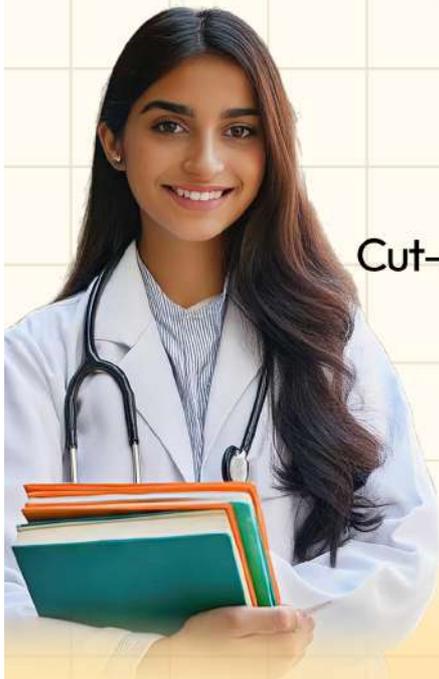

Any NEET-qualified student (no domicile restriction in most states)

Counselling authority:

State Counselling (varies by state)

Important points:

Cut-offs are lower than government seats

NRI Quota

What it is:

Seats reserved for:

- NRIs
- OCI/PIO candidates
- Children/wards of NRIs (subject to rules)

Who can apply:

NEET-qualified candidates with valid NRI documents

Important points:

- Limited number of seats
- Available in private & deemed universities

Deemed Universities

What they are:

Autonomous medical universities recognised by NMC

Counselling authority:

MCC (All India level)

Important points:

- NEET qualification required
- Higher fees than private medical colleges
- Transparent online counselling
